

Qi Qiao Jie

No gifts I send today,
No flowers, chocolates or champagne,
Just words that you may easy throw away,
But like the love forever stayed,
For a vow once made can never be unsaid.

No love song for you,
No jewels or heart filled card,
Just repeated claims remaining true,
Of my undiminished love, not tokens
That get old or break, but words that cannot be unspoken.

No lingerie my dear,
No candled cake, or song, or scented paper,
Just letters that eternally endure,
In memories that cannot be unlearned,
You once replied the same and that can never be returned